ROLLER DERBY EXPLAINED

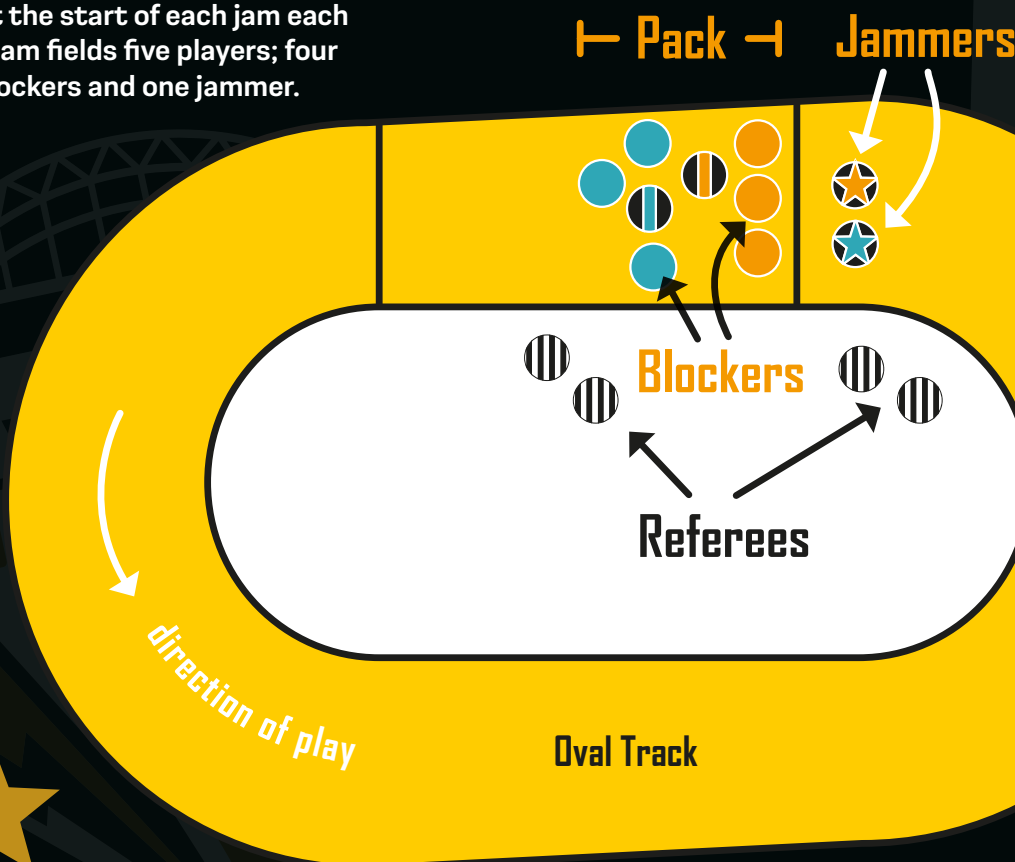

Roller derby is a contact sport played by two teams of up to 15 players. The game is played in a counter-clockwise direction around an oval track.

The game consists of two halves of 30 minutes with each half consisting of a series of short Jams, with each jam lasting a maximum of two minutes.

At the start of each jam each team fields five players; four blockers and one jammer.

The jammer is the skater who scores points by lapping the players on the opposing team. The blockers attempt to hinder the opposing jammer while assisting their own jammer: playing both defence and offence at the same time.

The first jammer out of the pack gains lead jammer status for that jam which means they have the ability to strategically call off the jam. However, if the jammer goes to the penalty box, they lose that lead jammer status.

The first lap of the track is called the Initial pass and no points are scored.

Once a jammer has completed their initial pass, they can score points. A jammer scores one point for each player of the opposing team they pass as long as they do it in bounds and legally.

Jammers continue to skate round the track scoring points for the full two minutes of the jam or until the lead jammer calls off the jam. The lead jammer does this by repeatedly placing both their hands on their hips.

JAMMER

The jammer is the player wearing the Star Helmet Cover on their helmet. They always start each jam behind the jam line behind the pack. The lead jammer is the first jammer to get through the pack and the opposing team's blockers legally. The lead jammer (only) can call off the jam to prevent the other jammer from scoring points.

PIVOT

The pivot is a blocker and can be identified by the Stripe Helmet Cover on their helmet. They can be converted to a jammer during a jam if a legal Star Pass manoeuvre is successful.

BLOCKER

Blockers prevent the opposing jammer from passing through the pack while assisting their jammer to get through at the same time. They are responsible for maintaining the pack.

PENALTIES

Referees determine penalties. A penalty will land a player in the penalty box for 30 seconds. A penalty is when a player's actions significantly affects game play. If a jam ends before a player gets out of the box, the player remains in the penalty box during the subsequent jam until the penalty is completed.

What's in a (Roller Derby) Name?...

Although roller derby is a relatively new sport in the grand scheme of things, it has a rich history. This history includes a right of passage for new skaters in selecting their skating name. They're printed on our skaters shirts, so check them out. What could be your roller derby name?

BE WARNED!

Sitting in the track side seats is a great way to view the action, but the chances of being hit by a skater are higher and as such they are strictly for over 18s. Anyone in the audience who grabs or interferes with any skater or official in any way will be immediately ejected without a refund, so please stay behind the line!
